

Promoting Intimacy & Wellness

Nikki Mier is the manager of Fairvilla's Sexy Things on International Drive in Orlando.

Sexuality is a real and necessary part of human behavior.

Those who have lived in Orlando for a period of time are likely to have heard of Fairvilla's Sexy Things, which specializes in retail for adults.

For decades, the 12,000-square-foot flagship store, located on Orange Blossom Trail, has offered adult toys.

Cognizant of changing times and an evolution that is taking place in this specialized industry, Fairvilla has opened a new store.

Specifically designed to be smaller, Fairvilla's Sexy Things offers an alternative to those who may feel overwhelmed by the larger store.

"We think of ourselves as an intimacy and wellness boutique," said Nikki Mier, store manager.

The store's products are body-safe and nontoxic. Mier also referenced the term eco-sexy, which describes products that are environmentally friendly.

The store is bright, clean and spacious, tastefully displaying items like lingerie, beachwear, books, cards and more.

Products at the satellite location are still fun and flirty, yet there is a definite emphasis on education, safety and respect.

"Our goal is to greet everyone who comes through our doors with respect and a genuine desire to help them feel confident and comfortable."
